Lars Rothschild Henriksen is deeply fascinated by how we as humans navigate the increasing complexity of work and life in the best possible way.

Originally trained as a graduate engineer in software systems engineering, Lars started his career as a systems, applications, and products (SAP) consultant and subsequently an independent project manager. Several years into this career, Lars decided he wanted to pursue a more direct way to impact and help people. He switched to training and coaching, and he founded Vital Learning, a Crucial Learning licensee of which he is CEO and a master trainer.

He is passionate about teaching these skills and has worked with thousands and thousands of people in the biggest companies across Denmark, Greenland, and Faroe Islands.

A lifelong learner, Lars is always looking to dive deeper into the practices he teaches. As an example, Lars is one of only seven people with all possible GTD® certifications through David Allen Company.

“Lars is, honestly, a truly stellar trainer. He is clearly ‘living the practices’ and leads by example. I left the seminar with focus and direction!”
